“If you live to be 70 years old you will spend TEN YEARS of your life on Monday.”- Chris Scholes

A BRIEF THOUGHT

An Excerpt from New Morning Mercies by Paul Tripp

Since your standing with God is based not on your righteousness but on Christ’s, in moments of failure, you can run to him and not from him. In the brokenness and grief of conviction, you can run into the light of his holy presence utterly unafraid, filled with the confidence that although he is righteous and you are not, he will not turn you away. You can do this because your standing with him has never been based on your righteous performance, but on the perfect obedience of your Savior. Because you are in Christ, you are counted by God as righteous and therefore accepted into his holy presence forever. Yes you are called to live a holy life, but your way of living is not the basis of your standing before God. You can bow at his feet and confess your sins, knowing that you will receive grace and not punishment, because Jesus took the full brunt of your penalty so that you would never, ever bear it. So when you fail again today, where will you run?
